

Embargoed: Not for Release Until 10am GMT October 29, 2021

A DIGITAL GARAGE AND MORE FOR BROOKLIN MODEL COLLECTORS

Brooklin Models is teaming up with hobbyDB in a joint effort to create the ultimate online collecting experience for its fans - the ability to create their own digital Garage. The jointly created database will feature all Brooklin Models ever made since the company's inception more than 40 years ago. It will also show all colour and other variants.

Besides the personalizable Garage, the new database will have a Collection Management Tool, a Wish List (that sends product alerts), a Member Directory, a list of all series issued by the company that can be sorted many different ways, a price guide including eBay transactions and historical auction house prices, a marketplace and more.

Membership is free and even better, twice a year there will be a special model for sale that is exclusively for Garage Owners! The public reveal of the Digital Garage will be during the first meeting of the new North American Brooklin Collector Club at the NB Center for American Automotive Heritage in Pennsylvania on November 19-20, 2021. More information here - thenbcentercollection.com.

ABOUT BROOKLIN MODELS

In the basement of a house in a small rural town of Brooklin in Canada, John Hall, a designer engineer, decided to change a lifelong interest of collecting American Automobiles into something tangible: 1/43 scale handmade models. 50 years later, Brooklin Models Limited is the world's leading manufacturer of 1/43 scale hand-built white metal models. You can find out more about Brooklin on brooklinmodels.com

ABOUT HOBBYDB

Built by collectors and owned by hundreds of collectors, hobbyDB is building the ultimate database and, most importantly, a community for the world of collecting. A place collectors throughout the world can call home. Learn more about hobbyDB at www.hobbydb.com